Alpine Achievers Initiative (AAI) inspires, connects, and nurtures youth, families, and communities in south-central Colorado. AmeriCorps members support local youth, from pre-k to high school, through academic interventions and extracurricular programming as Student Engagement Specialists. Members will be placed with host sites across seven counties throughout the San Luis and Arkansas River Valleys. To learn more about AAI's programming, visit www.alpineachievers.org.

SERVICE RESPONSIBILITIES IN PRIMARY PROGRAMS:

AmeriCorps members will provide direct support to students, addressing both academic and social-emotional needs. Responsibilities vary by site and may include one-on-one tutoring, small group academic assistance, and facilitating extracurricular activities.

Each position is tailored to the specific needs of the site. Some roles focus primarily on academic interventions, while others emphasize extracurricular programming. Most positions involve a combination of in-school and out-of-school activities, all of which require direct service with youth. Members are encouraged to build strong connections with students, offering both academic and social-emotional support, with guidance from their program manager and site supervisor.

To ensure success, members are required to meet with their program manager at least once a month and their site supervisor at least once a week. In addition, members must participate in the following:

- A week-long orientation, including overnight stays in shared accommodations.
- Monthly professional development sessions.
- A winter retreat, which includes overnight stays.

These experiences are designed to enhance the AmeriCorps member journey, promoting personal and professional growth, reflection, and community building.

Academic Interventions:

AmeriCorps members will provide targeted support to students needing extra help outside of regular class time, focusing on one-on-one or small group tutoring, particularly in subjects like math and reading. Members will also work to build students' confidence and foster meaningful relationships.

Academic interventions are designed to support students who are struggling to meet proficiency in specific subjects. Members will develop behavioral management skills with the goal of building authentic relationships and boosting confidence in students who are behind academically. In addition to their academic support, members will have daily interactions with both students and staff in various professional settings and are encouraged to engage with students in extracurricular activities as well.

Out-of-School Programming:

AmeriCorps members will lead structured out-of-school activities that provide both academic assistance and opportunities for personal development. They will focus on fostering social and personal growth among youth.

Out-of-school time (OST) programs, such as after-school programs, camps during school breaks, and AAI's Home School Program, offer supervised activities when school is not in session. Members' primary responsibilities include facilitating a variety of indoor and outdoor activities, providing light academic support, and helping with homework as directed by the site supervisor. Members will also develop skills in behavioral management and group facilitation, working with students from elementary through high school. The overarching goal is to build relationships, enhance confidence, and improve personal and social skills in the youth they serve.

Youth Mental Health Corps (YMHC) Responsibilities:

As part of AAI's commitment to addressing youth mental health, all members will be enrolled in the Youth Mental Health Corps (YMHC) unless they choose to opt out. YMHC members will:

- Complete Behavioral health Plus Certification through Front Range Community College, requiring synchronous weekly coursework (1.5 hours per week for 10 weeks October-December).
- Increase the capacity of schools and community organizations to respond to the youth mental health crisis.
- Provide peer support and promote mental wellness in schools and afterschool programs.

Note: Members who opt out of YMHC will not be required to take the coursework but will receive a reduced bi-weekly living allowance ($875 instead of $979).
